RETIRE FROM RING

Says He Has Taken Part in 184 Contests and Has Reached His Limit.

LOT COMING ON

Wants to Stop in Time, But Won't Refuse Big Money

PHILADELPHIA, PA., March 12.—
Jack O'Brien says he has taken part in 184 boxing contests during the last eleven years, which netted him in money over $118,000, and feeling that he has reached his limit in strength and skill as a fighter, he is looking ahead to the time when he shall retire. He will soon be thirty years, old and recognizing the fact that an athlete will rapidly lose form after reaching that age, he is preparing to stop fighting before he actually has to. He is interested in several lines of business, including real estate in this city, a hotel in San Francisco, and mining claims in Nevada, and thinks that he will be able to keep the wolf from the door without the use of the padded mit. Of course, O'Brien will not turn down any easy money in the boxing game, no matter when it is offered, but he feels that the time is not far distant when he must begin to steer clear of the harder game. There are a lot of Sturdy young fellows coming along who will soon be doing to the men of O'Brien's age what O'Brien has been doing to the cid-timers, who are now gradually being forgotten, and Jack hopes to escape the abuses that are invariably meted out to old fighters by quitting before the other fellows get them.

But it is hard to know just when to stop, for the money inducements

But it is hard to know just when to stop, for the money inducements are so alluring to a fighter with a reputation. "It is strange ,but true," said O'Brien, speaking of his possible retirement, "that in the beginning, when you are really fighting your best, you find it harder getting $50 for a fight than later you do in getting $5,000. At the $50 rate it would be easy to stop fighting, but it requires an effort to refust the $5,000 offers."

O'Brien will remain in this city until after Easter, and then return to beat Squires in Australia and then came home with claims for the championship Jack said: "I claim the light, heavyweight, and if Johnson wants to fight for the championship Jeffries is the man to look after him."

smash-up he received at the Gould-Bro-kaw race meet last fall. Mr. Brokaw has been greatly criticised for his attitude on this occasion, as Mr. Carle sustained the accident while riding one of Mr. Bro-kaw's race ponies. He was put in a servant's room and left alone in an un-conscious condition while a gay hous-party spent most of the night in song and meriment. Mr. Carle, Sr., hearing of the accident from outsiders and un-able to obtain any information of his son's real condition from the Brokaw household, finally took a Long Island train and finding the young man in a very bad way had him at once removed to the New York Hospital, where it was found that his pelvis was badly broken. A complete recovery, which was hardly even hoped for, has been made, and those inclined to criticise the millionaire must repent, for it is rumored that after Mr. Carle had been in the hospital a matter of several months, Mr. Brokaw sent his man with some roses to make inquiries in regard to the invalid's condition. What more could one ask?—Bit and Spur.

Mr. Carle is well known in Virginia, where he lived for several years at the University of Virginia. During that time one of the steeple characteristic of the rode many races and hunted, regularly with Keswick Hounds in Albemarie county. He has been out with Deep Run, and at the spring races two years ago rode Mr. Legh R. Page's "The King" in the steeplechase event.

Death of a $100,000 Colt.

Something like the same sad feeling which stole over James R. Keene when he saw his great herse Sysonby dead in his stable at Sheepshead Buy, last June, must have been experienced by Edward R. Thomas and Sydney Paget, when they stood in the stall in which all that was left of the $100,000 colt Walter Pearl laid. This son of Water-cress, after a day and a half's suffering, died early Monday morning, the victim of the same sort of bowel trouble which attacked him in August last at Saratoga.

JAP WARSHIP

Tsukuga, Faster Than Any American Ship, Was Built in Japan

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12,-A goodly number of American naval officers vill watch with interest the entry into Hampton Roads of the big Japanese armored cruiser Tsukuga. Their interest is explained by two facts—first, that this ship, with a speed on natural draft of about twenty-two knots, which is better than any of our own cruisers can do, was turned out from a Japanese shipyard by Japanese workmen, who are just beginning naval construction; yet, according to naval experts, the ship is perfect in overy detail. Second, that the Tsukuga with under commission and on the high seas within two years from the dato her keel was laid down in Japan. No such speed of construction as this has ever been attained in American ship-yards, at least where naval work was involved, and the best British record, namely, in the case of the Dreadnaught, is only slightly better than that made by the Japanese shipwrights in the building of the Tsukuga.
